The Czech Geographical Society offers to students presenting their research topics at the conference New Wave 2016 opportunity to publish their contributions in the form of articles in the peer-reviewed journal “Informace České geografické společnosti” ISSN 1213-1075.

Journal „Informace České geografické společnosti“ (further referred to as “Informace ČGS”) is regularly published since 1981. The original focus of this journal was to spread the information about the activities and work plans of all branches and sections of the Czech Geographical Society (hence the name of the journal). In 2009, the scope of the journal was broadened; additional sections were added and therefore the quality and content richness improved.

Journal Informace ČGS partly adopted some sections of another – currently impact journal “Geografie”, and further added supplementary news about the activities of the Society. The aim of the current journal is to serve as the communication platform for all members of the Czech Geographical Society and concurrently remain a scientific publication.

Journal contains the following sections:

- Feature articles
- Research reports and discussion
- Book reviews
- Conferences and other activities of fellow geographers
- Czech Geographical Society news
- Personalities

The journal is published biannually (at the end of March and September) and is distributed to all members of the Czech Geographical Society together with the impact journal Geografie for free. All issues are also available in the electronic form on the website of the Czech Geographical Society (www.geography.cz).
